

Biography for Dayle Laing

Dayle Laing, Bachelor Applied Science in Consumer Studies, Diploma Interior Design, LEED Accredited Professional, taught Interior Design at Sheridan College for 19 years and practiced design for two dozen years. The paper, “The Greening of Healthcare: Fabrics used in Health Care Facilities” by Dayle and co-author Walter F. Kean (MD (Glas), FRCP (Edin, Glas, & C), Clinical Professor in Medicine (Rheumatology), McMaster University, was published in the Journal of Green Building, Fall 2011, and the scientific poster and abstract were presented at an Inflammopharmacology Conference at Cambridge University in July, 2011. Dayle presented this research at the EcoCare healthcare conference in London, Ontario in October, 2010. Three of her seminars are accredited for continuing education credits for Interior Designers across North America. Dayle was keynote speaker at Earth Matters Day at Sunnybrook Health Sciences Centre in 2011. In the past, Dayle had a successful career in sales and sales management in the pharmaceutical industry. Her clients include healthcare facility ‘Green Teams’ for speaking engagements and consultation on their issues of sustainability. www.daylelaing.com